FEAR OF RAIN IN CUBA.

The Evil Effect of Water Is Not a Mere Superstition There.

The average Cuban is dreadfully afraid of rainwater. He believes that drenching in a rainstorm, followed by exposure to the rays of the sun, produces fever—not necessarily yellow fever, but an attack something similar to what is known as swamp fever in Mississippi or chagres in the isthmus of Panama.

The same belief prevails in Central and South America, but in a greater degree. On both coast lines of Nicaragua a light shower is the signal for a general scampering indoors and a disinclination to come out again until the sky is perfectly clear. Up on the high plateau on which the city of Caracas in Venezuela is situated and where there should be little or no fear of fever the natives are afraid to get even their faces wet. At the first appearance of a rainstorm the cab drivers, of whom there are more than 400, put up oilcloth screens in front of them and direct the course of the horses through a couple of peepholes, avoiding even a slight splash in the face.

All strangers from northern latitudes visiting Caracas are advised that not only is rain dangerous, but that it is not safe to take a bath within ten days after their arrival. Men accustomed to a daily plunge find this advice difficult to follow, especially in such a warm climate. Most of them disregard it and find that it does them no harm, and that it is a superstition based upon the laziness that follows a residence in an atmosphere so enervating that the dogs are too tired to get out of the way of the horse if the horse wasn't too tired to step on them.

The Cuban fear of rain, however, is based upon experience and is not a mere superstition.—New York Press.

Swapping Telephones.

The following story comes from the Grand Rapids Press and has to do with a man and a woman who are employed in different offices in one of the large buildings of that city. Each office has a telephone, but as it happens one is an instrument belonging to the Citizens' company, the other a Bell instrument.

One day the man had occasion to use the Citizens' line and stepped across the hall to the lady's office.

"Have you a Citizens' phone?" he asked, and she replied in the affirmative.

"Well," he ventured, "I'm a citizen. May I use it?"

Why, of course he might use it, but inwardly she was inclined to envy his ability to stand up and assert his citizenship in this way, for some of her womanly propensities were of the "newish" sort. An hour later she balanced accounts with him.

"Have you a Bell telephone?" she asked on stepping into his office. He did not try to deny it.

"Well, I'm a belle. May I use it?"

The Howell Torpedo.

Commodore John A. Howell, who has just been promoted to the rank of rear admiral, is the inventor of a self-propelling torpedo that differs in several respects from the Whitehead.

The chief novelty of the American system relates to the mode of driving the screw.

Whitehead stored compressed air in a chamber in his torpedo and placed in an adjoining compartment a small engine which should be operated thereby at the right juncture. Howell employs a heavy flywheel, which is put in rapid revolution, just before the torpedo is launched, by connecting its projecting axle with a steam engine that is entirely independent of the torpedo.

The Howell system has been improved since it was first patented in 1871, and it has been extensively used in the United States navy.

The Rarest Bird.

The rarest bird in existence is a certain kind of pheasant in Annam. For many years its existence was known only by the fact that its longest and most splendid plume was in much request by mandarins for their headgear.

A single skin is worth $400, and the living bird would be priceless, but it soon dies in captivity.

ASK FOR MERCY.

The Spaniards Abandon the Effort to Saddle Cuban Debt on America.

United States Guarantees That Life and Property Shall Be Secure in Cuba—Commissioners Will Next Take Up Philippine Question.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The Spanish peace commissioners have accepted the negative views of the United States commissioners towards the proposed assumption by the United States of the Cuban debt.

The American commissioners have firmly but courteously declined to assume for the United States the entire or joint responsibility for the Spanish financial conditions, and the Spanish commissioners have finally abandoned the effort and have agreed that the Cuban article of the protocol shall, without conditions, have a place in the ultimate treaty of peace. It was not until Monday that they became absolutely convinced that the Americans had, from the outset of their refusal to accept the Cuban debt, meant exactly what they said.

The American commissioners propose to do at the next meeting.

It is expected that the commissioners will now take up the subject of the Philippines. The American commissioners have given this subject much attention, but so far it has never appeared before the joint commission save in the shape of one spasmodic effort made by the Spaniards at the beginning of the sessions to have the United States abandon Manila as a precedent to further negotiations on the subject of the Philippines. The American commissioners among other things have been looking into the subject of the Philippine debt about which there is much ignorance at this end of the line. It is unlikely that the same rule will be applied to that debt as was insisted upon relative to the Cuban debt. In other words, if the United States annexes the Philippines, which seems now to be the most logical outcome of the situation, it might be reasonably contended that at least so much of the debt as represented moneys expended for the improvement of the island should pass to the United States with the title. The situation is regarded as materially different from that in Cuba, where the United States gains nothing substantial for, with the annexation of the

A SAD CASE OF FANATICISM.

A Colored Woman Represents Herself as Christ and Preaches the Doctrine of Fasting as a Means of Grace.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 28.—A case of fanaticism of the extreme type has been discovered here. Miss Nell Thompson, colored, died while being taken from the home of Mrs. Minerva Williams, who is said to call herself a representative of Christ and who has been preaching the doctrine of fasting as a means of grace.

The Thompson woman practiced this doctrine, having gone without food for eight days and sleeping in the river bottom on a piece of matting in pursuance of what is said to be Mrs. Williams' teachings. The matter is to be investigated.

GIGANTIC TRUST.

The Continental Tobacco Company to Be Incorporated in New York City.

Actual Aggregate Cost of New Concern Exclusive of the Plug Tobacco Business of the American Tobacco Co., About $60,000,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Nearly two years ago Col. J. B. Hughes, of Hamilton, O., and his associates, Fletcher S. Heath, a banker, of the same city, and Perry S. Heath, first assistant postmaster general, began to syndicate the great plug tobacco manufacturing establishments of this country and form an organization which, although at that time without the design, is now to control more than four-fifths of the tobacco output of the country and take from the American Co. its entire plug trade.

For more than eleven months past, eight or ten of the largest capitalists in the country, including three or four of the leading tobacco manufacturers, have devoted almost their entire time to the work of perfecting this organization and bringing the manufacturers together. A month before the declaration of war against Spain $28,500,000 in cash, the amount necessary to begin the transfer of the properties, was made ready, but the prospect of war frustrated all plans. Two of the largest life insurance companies in New York city at one time contracted to take upwards of $20,000,000 in the first bonds, while Russell Sage and his associates had arranged to place half as much more.

Col. Hughes and Mr. Fletcher S. Heath procured all of the contracts for the purchase of the plants while the finally successful brokers, Messrs Moore and Schley, of New York, the attorneys for the Continental Tobacco Co., Messrs Lawrence and Hughes, of No. 320 Broadway, New York, completed the syndicate and thus assisted in holding the property. The latter have now about completed the articles of incorporation of the Continental Tobacco Co., and they will likely be filed for record this week. The company will have a capital of $75,000,000, one-half to be seven per cent. preferred and one-half common stock. The actual aggregate cost of the above concern, exclusive of the plug tobacco business of the American Tobacco Co., was a little less than $60,000,000 cash. Messrs. Paul J. Sorg, of Middletown, O., Capt. P. H. Mayo, of Richmond, Va., and Daniel Scotten, of Detroit, Mich., whose establishments are among those purchased by the Continental Tobacco Co., will personally retire from business, but their present active managers will continue to direct the manufacture of their individual concerns. Col. Hughes and Fletcher S. Heath are arranging the details of the new organization.

MAIL SERVICE IN MANILA.

United States Postal Agent Valle Reports to the Post Office Department That Everything is Satisfactory.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—United States Postal Agent Valle, at Manila, has submitted a report to the post office department on the postal operations there. He says everything is moving satisfactorily, and that the largest business houses report the mail facilities much better than at any time under Spanish rule. He speaks in glowing terms of the island, expresses the hope that the United States will retain it. He says there is room for millions of people, and that the country is not surpassed by any in the United States. He adds that on September 19 he had a short talk with Aguinaldo at Malolos about the mails in the provinces under Aguinaldo's control, where the former Spanish officials are out and there is no regularly constituted postal authority in charge. Aguinaldo, who promised to send a representative to discuss the matter, was told that if he could satisfy the agent that the mails sent out would be delivered to addresses in proper condition he would deliver the mails.

THEY DESIRE STATEHOOD.

Gov. Miguel Ottero, of New Mexico, Reviews His Representations for Admission to the Union.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Gov. Miguel A. Ottero, of New Mexico, in his annual report to the secretary of the interior, vigorously renews his representations for the early admission of New Mexico to statehood, and portrays the undeveloped resources of the territory awaiting capital.

He estimates the total population of the territory now at 282,900, including an Indian population of 25,900. Of the 1,100 men from New Mexico in the war with Spain at least one-half were national guardsmen.

IN THE FLOWERY KINGDOM.

An Interesting Incident in the Daily Life of Her Majesty Highness, the Empress.

Her majesty, Tsi An, empress of China, sat in her palace in the purple forbidden city, with her brow resting on her thumb and her index finger pushed up through her bang. Rousing herself presently from her profound absorption she beckoned to a peasant-colored person plastered up against the yellow silk tapestry.

"Swat him," she said, "where is the emperor?"

"Dash your ignominious slave into a million atoms, oh, amethyst flower of the celestial kingdom," he responded, lying flat on his stomach before her, "but your slave wotteth not."

"Wot?" she screamed.

"No, most purple of our yellowest lilies of the Yankee Tse Kiang, I do not wot where the emperor is."

"And this to me?" she cried.

"Most beautiful descendant of all the gods, your vile slave speaks but the truth, though he lies here on his very stomach. He wotteth not where the emperor is."

"Slave, dog, canine, wretch, scum of the Yellow river, did I not tell you what to do?"

"Truly, most divine of all the gentle purple peonies of Peking, and your slave did it to the queen's taste, so to speak."

"Aha, then he is dead?"

"As a mackerel, oh, yellow anemone of the crystal sea."

"Why liest thou, knowing that he is dead?"

"How the dickens, most marvelous of mandarin matrons, do I know where he is? I'm no fortune teller."

"Oh, aha," smiled her majesty, again relapsing to thought, "bring on another."—Washington Star.

WHERE THE TWO COUNTRIES CLASH.

England claims all that part of Africa through which Nile river runs, while France, beginning at the French Congo, is seeking to control a strip of territory reaching from the Atlantic to the Indian ocean. Naturally their expeditions of conquest have met in the vicinity of Fashoda, as indicated in the map.

In spite of the fact that the Spanish commissioners had as a back ground of their efforts, doubts of succeeding, their hope of so doing has been so keen and their contention has been so vigorously prosecuted that the final conviction of their inability to win their point brought to the Spaniards such a shock and depression that consistently with these dispatches at the time, there were grave doubts as to the continuance of the negotiations.

In support of these statements is the fact that Senor Montero Rios, after Monday's session, and on Tuesday last, would have resigned the presidency of the Spanish peace commission, had he not believed that his so doing may have grievously shaken, even if he had not unseated Senor Sagasta's government. From this standpoint, if for no other reason, Senor Montero Rios retained his position, and at Wednesday's session, acting under the conviction arrived at on Monday, the Spaniards announced that they would forego further argument on the Cuban debt and agreed that, practically in the terms and absolutely in the spirit of the protocol, the article about Cuba should go forward into the final treaty.

Thus Spain agrees to relinquish sovereignty over and claim to Cuba without either terms or conditions. All differences, if any existed, regarding Porto Rico and the selection of the island of Guam were also arranged by a mutual understanding, and the commissioners found themselves well-nigh touching the Philippine question, which will be taken up next week.

The session of the joint commissions, which began Thursday at 2 p. m. ended at 4 p. m.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The intimation conveyed by the American commissioners to the Spanish commissioners at Monday's session of the peace conference at Paris, that the position of the United States with respect to Cuba and the Cuban debt, could not be regarded as subject to change and that consequently the American commissioners were ready to proceed with the consideration of other heads under the protocol the Paris advice show had the desired effect. The one concession as to Cuba that our commissioners will make will be to guarantee for the United States that life and property shall be secure in Cuba. This responsibility the United States assumes only until such time as a stable government shall be formed and operative in Cuba. There will be perpetual guarantee on this score.

Undue significance has been attached to the dispatch of a special messenger from Washington Wednesday to the president at Philadelphia. Almost every day a long report has come by cable from Judge Day, president of the American commissioners at Paris, telling what had been accomplished, what the Spanish commissioners were seeking and what Philippines, we should acquire a territory almost as large as the British Isles with a teeming population of more than 8,000,000 people. It will be for the American commissioners to arrange the details for the transfer of the Philippines to the United States, as it is expressly stipulated in the peace protocol that the disposition of the Philippines shall be arranged by the peace commissioners so that there is ample warrant, unlike the case of Cuba, for full discussion of all questions of the Philippine debt, municipal and insular.

It should be said that the adjustments already accomplished will stand in the final treaty, unless opposing views and positions on the Philippine question should develop hereafter and bring to naught the efforts of the future and at the same time the results already obtained.

THE HOLY LAND.

The German Emperor and Empress' Entrance Into Jerusalem.

Sunday the Imperial Pair Attended Services at the Evangelical Church in Bethlehem, Afterward Paying a Visit to the Church of the Nativity.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 31.—The approach of their German imperial majesties to the city Saturday was made through triumphal arches and amid banners, garlands and overgrown crowds, displaying in every way their enthusiasm and delight.

The formal entry through the Jaffa gate was heralded by the roar of guns at the citadel, where the Turkish band played the German anthem.

From the Tower of David Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria proceeded on foot, amid wild cheering, to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, where they were received by the Catholic, Greek and Armenian clergy, whose patriarchs presented addresses eulogizing the devotion of Emperor William, who has since conferred decorations on the patriarchs.

Their majesties then proceeded to the German Evangelical church, where the pastor presented an address.

At 6 o'clock in the evening (Saturday) a reception was held at the German consulate and later there was a general illumination of the city, with a display of fireworks.

Sunday the imperial pair attended service at the Evangelical church in Bethlehem, afterward paying a visit to the Church of the Nativity.

The weather Sunday was beautiful and everywhere the greatest enthusiasm was displayed.

After the excursion to Jericho, Djavad Pasha, former grand vizier, recently Turkish governor of Crete and now attached to the person of Emperor William as a special representative of the sultan, will leave the imperial suite. It is rumored that this is due to some unpleasantness.

Emperor William has sent his portrait in brilliant to Tewfik Pasha, Turkish ambassador to Germany, who was among the high Ottoman dignitaries that received the emperor and empress in Constantinople.

Emperor William and the empress, while at the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, visited the various portions of the sacred shrine and spent ten minutes at the scene of the crucifixion. Their return from the church was the occasion for an outburst of popular enthusiasm, palm branches being strewn along the way and the cobblestones laid with carpets.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

According to private information received here, Emperor William's reception at Haifa, Palestine, was anything but a success. The Turkish ironclads that were to fire a salute did not arrive until four hours after the emperor's departure, and nobody was allowed to witness the imperial landing from the windows.

THE FAMOUS DREYFUS CASE.

The Court of Cassation Decides to Review the Trial—Has Absolute Control Over the Matter.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—By Saturday's decision the court of cassation obtains the most absolute control over the Dreyfus case. It can demand and examine any documents, whatever, including the dossier, of any case bearing upon the Dreyfus matter, and can examine under oath any witness, however high his position.

In short, if the court makes a sincere use of its powers the truth will have a much better chance of being discovered than would have been the case had it merely ordered revision before another court-martial, whose members might have been actuated by a desire to shield the general staff.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says the decision of the court of cassation on Saturday was given by a vote of 9 against 4.

A BIG SENSATION AT PONCE.

Two Alleged Anarchists Land From the Red D Line Steamer Philadelphia From the Spanish Main.

PONCE, Oct. 31.—A sensation was caused here Saturday on the arrival of the Red D line steamer Philadelphia from the Spanish Main, by the discovery in the hand bags of two passengers of a number of explosive cartridges containing dynamite.

The discovery was made by the custom officials and the passengers were arrested on the supposition that they are anarchists.

The police who fear that others belonging to the gang have escaped, are making a strict search.

WANT TERRITORIAL RIGHTS.

Delegates From the Principal Towns in Porto Rico Held a Meeting in the Theater in Ponce Sunday.

SAN JUAN, P. R., Oct. 31.—The principal theater of the city was taxed to its utmost capacity Sunday afternoon on the occasion of a public meeting of delegates from the chief towns of the island to consider and defeat recommendations regarding the necessities of the island for the use of the special commissioners who will be selected later to represent Porto Rico at Washington when the time comes for settling the administrative system.

The assembly was fairly representative, and although the proceedings gave undue prominence to unimportant details, there was abundant evidence of intelligent reflection on the part of the delegates and of a determination not to tolerate partisan politics at this crisis in the island's affairs.

Carefully prepared reports were submitted by the political, social and economical committees.

The meeting received with enthusiasm the resolutions demanding territorial rights, the cessation of the present military rule and the installation of regular civil government.

Other resolutions were adopted asking an eight-hour day for the laboring man and severely denouncing the present corrupt system of registering deeds of land.

It was observed that the delegates proceeded upon the assumption that the United States would grant Porto Rico territorial rights.

COL. G. E. WARING, JR., DEAD.

Three Hours After His Death His Body Was Taken to Swinburne Island and Cremated.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Col. Geo. E. Waring, jr., died of yellow fever Saturday at his home in this city where he had been since he arrived from Havana on the Yucatan on Tuesday last. He was 67 years of age.

Three hours after the death of Col. Waring his body, inclosed in a metal casket, was taken from the apartment he had occupied to the dock at the foot of Fifteenth street, where the quarantine boat, Gov. Flowers, with Dr. Doty in charge, was in waiting. The body was placed on board and taken to Swinburne island. It was there placed in a retort, and Dr. Doty himself lit the fire which cremated the remains.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The ashes of Col. George E. Waring, jr., which were placed in an urn temporarily, remained Sunday at Swinburne island. What disposition will be made of them has not yet been decided upon by Mrs. Waring. On account of the expressed wish of Col. Waring there will be no public funeral. Col. Waring often said that he wished his obsequies to be of the simplest character.

FITZHUGH LEE'S COMMAND.

It is the Intention of the Administration to Land the Corps in Cuba By the 1st of January Next.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—No definite determination has been reached as to the date when the troops now at Savannah will be sent to Cuba. A prominent administration official said Sunday night that the departure of Gen. Lee's corps would be dependent, to a certain extent, upon the movements of the Spanish forces in evacuating the island. The American troops, he said, might sail this week, and they might not sail for a month.

It is the intention of the administration, however, to land Gen. Lee's corps in Cuba before the 1st of January. That date has been fixed definitely as the time for the final evacuation of the island by the Spaniards. An effort was made by the Spanish authorities to obtain an extension of the time of evacuation until the 1st of February, but the proposition was declined by the American commissioners.

Senor Montero Rios Ill.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish peace commission, is ill. This caused some doubt Sunday evening as to whether there will be a joint session of the commissions Monday. If he is unable to attend it is unlikely that the Spaniards would consent to enter the conference to take up the Philippine question for initial consideration.

MUST HOLD THEM.

President Arrives at the Conclusion That We Must Keep Philippines.

It Is Evident That Spain Can Not Again Re-Establish Authority Over the Remaining Islands Without a Prolonged War With Insurgents.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President McKinley is convinced that there is no way in which the United States can escape the responsibility of taking all the Philippines. He has arrived at this conclusion after mature deliberation. He at first favored keeping nothing more than a military and naval base, and thought that the United States should in no event retain more than the island of Luzon. When the American peace commissioners left for Paris it was not contemplated that they should demand from the Spanish government more than the absolute cession of this one island to the United States and a reversionary interest in the other islands of the group.

It has been found, however, that there were many practical difficulties in the way of such a solution, not the least of them being the evident impossibility of Spain's re-establishing authority over the remaining islands without a prolonged and bloody struggle with the insurgent forces.

Information, coupled with the opinion of military and naval commanders familiar with the Philippine situation, have led the president to believe that Adm. Dewey's destruction of the Spanish fleet in Manila bay and Gen. Merritt's capture of Manila, annihilated Spanish sovereignty in the islands and it became a duty of the United States to establish a better government than the one which was destroyed by American arms.

The president has been deluged with letters from all parts of the United States and with resolutions from commercial and religious bodies, urging that American sovereignty should be maintained wherever the flag has been planted. In this same line, the president's recent western trip was a revelation to him and the members of his cabinet who accompanied him. The further he went west the stronger he found the sentiment in favor of holding all the Philippines and establishing an American government over them.

Secretary Gage, who went west before the president, and who went as far as Denver, found the sentiment there even stronger than in Omaha. In all the meetings of the cabinet before the peace commissioners left for Paris Secretary Gage was the most conservative of all the president's advisers. He doubted the wisdom of taking even as much as the Island of Luzon, and would have been glad if a way had been found of relinquishing all the Philippines. Since his return from the west, however, he is an advocate of holding all the islands.

Although it has been finally determined that the Philippines shall be retained, the peace commissioners may be given considerable latitude as to the terms on which they are to be retained. The Philippines are regarded as standing on a different basis from Cuba and Porto Rico, and some of the members of the administration believe that if all the islands are taken Spain should be given some measure of compensation for them, especially as the Philippines have been by far the most valuable of all her colonies.

It can be said that it is quite probable that the American commissioners will be authorized to go so far as to offer to pledge the United States to assume the Philippine debt, or at least such portion of it as has been expended on the public works in the islands.

The exact amount of the debt that could be properly charged to the United States under such an arrangement could not be accurately stated without a fuller analysis of this debt than as yet has been made, but it is believed that it will be less than $40,000,000.

C. P. Huntington, the Ship Yard Owner, to Build Armor Plate and Ordnance Factories at Newport, Va.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Oct. 31.—It is learned Sunday from reliable sources that C. P. Huntington, the owner of the shipyard and the founder of Newport News, will reach here Tuesday morning, directly from the Pacific coast, and is believed that his visit at this time is in reference to the proposed extensions to be made to the already mammoth shipbuilding plant.

On the occasion of his previous visit to Newport News, Mr. Huntington said that he contemplated erecting on the half-mile water front adjoining the shipyard an armor plate plant and ordnance factory. He paid $50,000 for this piece of property six months ago, and it is understood that he is now determined to go ahead with his project.

DIED OF BUBONIC PLAGUE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—The French bark Duchesse Anne has arrived in port from Hong Kong flying the yellow flag. Both the federal and state quarantine launches put out to the vessel, and soon the news came back to port that there had been two deaths on board during the voyage from the bubonic plague. Capt. Cervary, master of the ship, was the first to succumb to the dread disease. He was sick only a few days and died on August 20. Nearly a month afterward a sailor named Menier was stricken with the plague, and on September 19 he died and was buried at sea. The bark was ordered into quarantine.

No Agreement on Due of Evacuation.

HAVANA, Oct. 31.—After a joint session lasting two hours, held in the Camara Inular, the Spanish and American commissioners are as far off as ever from an agreement on the date of evacuation. The Americans strongly urged that the final day be January 1, the Spanish commissioners as emphatically insisting that evacuation was impossible before February 1.

A rear end collision on the Union Pacific near Omaha Wednesday resulted in the death of three men and the serious injury of one other.

THE PHILADELPHIA PARADE.

One of the Greatest in the History of the Country—Fifty Thousand Men and at Least 150 Floats in Line.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Philadelphians and their visitors again poured into the streets Friday to seek positions to witness the third and last of the great peace jubilee processions. Friday's procession was purely of a civic character and was a most fitting windup of the week's jubilee, the emblems of peaceful industry following the display of the nation's prowess in war.

The exercises of the day opened with the re-dedication of old Independence hall, the historic building from which the declaration of independence was read to the people of the new republic on July 4, 1776. The buildings which had from time to time since that date been added for uses as offices of the municipal authorities have all been recently removed and the famous hall is now in its original form, as it was 122 years ago, when occupied by the United States congress and the national government officials.

The re-dedication exercises were presided over by Gov. Hastings and were opened by prayer by Rev. Dr. Brownson. The anthem, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was sung by 23,000 pupils of the public schools, accompanied with music by the 1st Regiment band. The memorial poem composed by Mrs. Florence Earle Coates, dedicated to the peace jubilee, was read by Daniel W. Hutchins, principal of one of the public schools. The anthem, "Columbia," was sung by the scholars, and then followed the oration by Mayor Chas. Warwick.

Upon the conclusion of the ceremonies the great audience hurried to positions from which to see the monster civic procession. A stand covering the sidewalk the entire length of the front of the historical hall had been erected for occupancy during the parade by the 3,000 school children, who had participated in the dedication exercises.

The mammoth trades display, or what was popularly known as the civic parade, started from Broad and Cumberland streets promptly at 11 o'clock, headed by Maj. Gen. George R. Snowden and staff of 30 mounted aides.

The parade was one of the greatest in the history of the country. It was divided into ten divisions and it is estimated that there were 50,000 men in line besides at least 150 floats representing in miniature almost every manufacturing interest and trade. There were 110 bands of music in line.

THE GOLD FIELD IN OHIO.

It Is Claimed the Yellow Metal Exists at Malvern in Paying Quantities—The Big Quartz Crusher.

CANAL DOVER, O., Oct. 29.—The gold excitement at Malvern is still spreading, and there now seems to be sufficient evidence to indicate that gold really exists in paying quantities.

The details so far from the field have been meager because of its out of the way location and the infrequency of travelers from that district to this point. Jacob Gefert, whose home is in Malvern, arrived here Friday. Mr. Gefert is a reputable man and his statements ought to be authoritative. In speaking of the new Eldorado he said: "It is difficult to find out just what there is in it for Mr. Alfred Wartmon, a newcomer, who has purchased a $4,000 mining outfit. Some of the reports have been shown to me, and they are more promising than the one made by Wartmon, which shows about $25 of pure gold to the ton of quartz. There is one assay made at the instance of a Malvern man, whose name I am not privileged to mention, which shows between $50 and $60 of gold to the ton.

"If it is all a scheme to raise the price of real estate on the part of Wartmon and other farmers, they should begin selling pretty soon. Many of them have now been offered more than twice the value of their land, but they are still holding on and say they will not sell at any price."

The big quartz crusher will be in operation within a day or two.

The vessel which has begun to take on her freight is docked at the Pacific street wharf. She may sail Sunday.

Mother's Friend

is an external liniment for expectant mothers to use. It gives them strength to attend to their household duties almost to the hour of confinement. It is the one and only preparation that overcomes morning sickness and nervousness. It is the only remedy that relaxes and relieves the strain. It is the only remedy that makes labor short and delivery easy. It is the only remedy that puts the breasts in condition so that swelling or rising is impossible. Don't take medicines internally. They endanger the lives of both mother and child.

VISITING A SHRINE.

Lieutenant Rawlinson's Daring Entry Into the Sacred City of Kum.

Kum, a walled city of Persia, ranks second to Meshed in sanctity, on account of the famous shrine of Masuma Fatima, sister of the Imam Riza, a famous saint of the Mohammedans. While Lieutenant Rawlinson was on his way to Teheran he heard much of this sacred city and the glories of the shrine, which, it was said, no European had ever entered. Death, so rumor whispered, would be the portion of the audacious infidel who should be discovered within its precincts.

To a young and ardent spirit a dangerous adventure is an irresistible attraction. Young Rawlinson determined to visit the shrine. Disguised as a Persian pilgrim, thousands of whom annually journey to the sacred city, he joined the crowd of pilgrims. His knowledge of Persian and of the customs of the country enabled him to pass undetected through the temple gates and to make his way to the tomb of the saint. The guardian gave him the customary form of words and he repeated them.

But his curiosity almost caused his detection. Attracted by magnificent suits of steel armor which hung on the walls, he was gazing at them, when suddenly he found that he had turned his back upon the sacred shrine where the saint was entombed.

A thrill of alarm startled him, but the discomfited, impossible to a "true believer," had not been noticed. If it had been, there would probably have been no further career for the young lieutenant, who subsequently became the decipherer of Assyrian and Babylonian inscriptions and texts, and died the renowned orientalist, Sir Henry Rawlinson.—Youth's Companion.

MATES OF GREAT MEN.

The Wives of Both Disraeli and Gladstone Were Brave.

Once when Gladstone was making an outdoor speech it began to rain. Quietly Mrs. Gladstone, with her sweet, motherly face, and who always accompanied her husband, stood up, and, opening a domestic looking umbrella of the Gamp species, held it over him. The spectacle which the old couple presented there standing together was so touching and appealed so thoroughly to the good feelings of the crowd, because of the striking picture of Darby and Joan domesticity, that when a burly cotermonger, who had been loudest in his catcalls and booing of Mr. Gladstone up to that moment, suddenly shouted, "Three cheers for the grand old woman!" every one responded with a will.

Lady Beaconsfield showed similar devotion to Gladstone's great rival on more than one occasion. She, too, was devoted to her husband, and many old parliamentarians recall the story of how after having had her hand terribly crushed in the carriage door while driving down to the house of parliament with Disraeli she refrained from uttering a cry or from saying a word about her injury lest his mind should be diverted from the great and important speech which he was to deliver that night. It was not until he reached home and found the doctor at her bedside that he was made aware that she had sustained any hurt.—New York Herald.

Dancing Birds.

One of the many strange sights on the plains of southern Africa is a party of waltzing ostriches. Their queer antics have been described thus:

"When there are a number of them, they will start off in the morning and after running a few hundred yards will stop, and with raised wings will whirl rapidly round till they are stupefied or perhaps break a leg. The males pose also before fighting and to make their court. They kneel on their ankles, opening their wings and balancing themselves alternately forward and backward or to one side or the other, while the neck is stretched on a level with the back and the head strikes the sides, now on the right, now on the left, while the feathers are bristling. The bird appears at this time so absorbed in its occupation as to forget all that is going on around him and can be approached and caught. The male alone utters a cry, which sounds much like an effort to speak with the mouth shut tight."

Discovery of the Home of Buddha.

Far away on the border of Nepal the home of Guatama Buddha has been discovered. Buddha lived about 500 B. C. and was the son of the rajah of Kapilavastu. A pillar, inscribed by the Emperor Asoka in the third century B. C., marks the city's site. The ruins are all of brick and are covered with jungle and so extensive that their exploration will require years. The city was destroyed during Buddha's lifetime. It was a mass of ruins in A. D. 410, when the first Buddhist Chinese pilgrim made his way there. The buildings that are now being excavated are older than anything known in India heretofore.—London Letter.

Sixty-two Children.

A remarkable tale of human fecundity is told by the London Daily News. An Italian peasant woman named Granata, married at 28 years, has borne 62 children. She began with a single daughter, followed by six boys at a birth, then by five more, and these by triplets twice and four at a birth. After this she limited herself, like ordinary women, to single babies and twins, but wound up with another batch of four.

Swedish Railways.

The first railroad in Sweden was opened in 1855, and the country has now in proportion to its population more railways than any other country in Europe. They are owned partly by the state and partly by private corporations. Sweden has the only railway in the world which passes the polar circle—i. e. the state line from Lulea to Gellivare, in the Lapland district.

Eczema! The Only Cure.

Eczema is more than a skin disease, and no skin remedies can cure it. The doctors are unable to effect a cure, and their mineral mixtures are damaging to the most powerful constitution. The whole trouble is in the blood, and Swift's Specific is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated blood diseases.

Eczema broke out on my daughter, and continued to spread until her head was entirely covered. She was treated by several good doctors, but grew worse, and the dreadful disease spread to her face. She was taken to two celebrated health springs, but received no benefit. Many patent medicines were taken, but without result, until we decided to try S. S. S., and by the time the first bottle was finished, her head began to heal. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now sixteen years old, and has a magnificent growth of hair. Not a sign of the dreadful disease has ever returned.

Don't expect local applications of soaps and salves to cure Eczema. They reach only the surface, while the disease comes from within. Swift's Specific is the only cure and will reach the most obstinate case. It is far ahead of all similar remedies, because it cures cases which are beyond their reach. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no potash, mercury or other mineral. Books mailed free by Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

NATURE CHISELED HIM FOR IT

He Was a Collector, and No Better
Man for His Business
Could Be Found.

"There's the best collector in Detroit," and the head of the firm indicated the man on whom the praise had been bestowed.

"He doesn't look it."

"No, nor anything like it, yet I believe that his appearance is about 90 per cent. of his stock in trade. Just size him up. Did you ever see a more ingenious face? He got his job just as he gets money from debtors that are bad pay. He came right to me and asked for employment. I told him we were not in need of anyone and followed the usual form in telling him to call again. He took the invitation literally, walked around the block and dropped in to make another application. 'You told me to call again,' he said. 'Want a good man?' I did the usual thing once more, carelessly asking him to call again. Another trip around the block and he put in his third appearance, once more informing me that he was a good man in search of a job. I tried him again, and he proved to be a four-time winner.

"Then it struck me that he would make a collector if he carried his persistency into his work and he proved a wonder. He has realized an old accounts that we had given up as hopeless long ago, simply wearing debtors down to where they would pay rather than be bothered any further. One sharp rascal, who makes no pretense of paying his debts, told our phenomenon that he would have to get up very early in the morning to get anything out of him. Our man was at that fellow's house at 2:30 a. m., routed him out and actually got the money. He never tires and never lets go. Another maddened debtor told him to sing for his money, and 'Old Reliable' simply took a stool in the office and saved away on 'Old Grimes is Dead' till he got the cash. He's an odd stick, but he's a world beater."—Detroit Free Press.

A HUNG JURY.

It Was Fixed Up in Ten Minutes So
a Community Would Be Proud of It.

Carefully detaching an irregular chunk from the massive slab of "black jack," the landlord of the Miners' Mecca proceeded with his remarks.

"That never wuz but one hung jury in Bloody Gulch, an' that wuz way back when Hecker wuz a pup," he resumed. "It all ariz out uv arthin', too. Der-ringer Dick, bein' restless an' oneasy like one day, had his hand broke by a nigger's head, an' pettishly flies up an' shoots ther cuss for it.

"Now, thar happened to be an even-angel in town at ther time, an' he said ez how Dick wouldn't have got his hand broke ef he hadn't hit ther negro, an' ther tharfore ther killin' wan't arthin' but col'blooded murder.

"Well, ter humor 'im, we puts Dick on trial. We makes Bugjuice Bill foreman av ther jury, an' gathers ther trusty emfreesers 'bout 'im, which ther same Bill sez is aruff. I2 bein' too many for nice sociable poker. So they be-gins deliberatin' in ther back room of Red Hawkin's saloon.

"Two days go by an' they're still deliberatin'. Another piled up, an' they bawled out through ther keyhole that they wuz still deliberatin', but it didn't go. We breaks in an' finds 'em all dead drunk. On investigatin' we finds they've knocked ther bougholes out uv all ther barr's in ther room an' let what whisky they hadn't been able ter consoom run out on ther floor. An' ter cap it all we ketches 'em tryin' ter fill ther barr's with water.

"Winter wuz jes' settin' in, an' ther idee uv goin' without redeye fill spring, together with ther dastardly trick uv ringin' water in on us, wuz more'n we could stand. So we turns to, an' in less'n ten minutes fixes up a hung jury that any community could hev been proud uv."—N. Y. Journal.

Indian Salad.

Cut some very thin slices of a ramp steak and rub into both sides of these a quantity of salt and pepper, set these slices to dry in a cool oven, and when completely browned put aside to cool, wash and shred some lettuce, sprinkle salt and pepper between the pieces as they are arranged in a salad bowl, chop the meat exceedingly small, add the mince to the lettuce and mix, pour over salad dressing and garnish with fragments of oysters, dried very brown and crisp in a frying pan with a little butter and a handful of rice, boiled, and then fried at the same time as the onion. Drain both quite free from fat before adding to the salad.—Boston Globe.

Tea Myth.

Three eggs, a little salt, flour to mix so it can be rolled out very thin. Cut into circles and fry in very hot lard. Scraps of fresh fish hashed and mixed with mashed potato are fine seasoned, made into oblong pats like fish, rolled in cracker crumbs and fried brown in hot lard.—Ladies' World.

Apple Salad.

One bunch of celery, cut fine, three large apples cut in small pieces, with celery. Dressing—Two eggs, half a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful mustard, half a teaspoonful salt, a little outter and pepper, one cupful of vinegar. Boil a few minutes and pour over hot.—N. Y. Ledger.

LOVE AND PET ME NOW.

Take my withered hands in yours,
Children of my soul.
Mother's heart is craving love,
Mother's growing old.
See the snows of many years
Crown my furrowed brow.
As I've loved and petted you,
Love and pet me now.

Lay your hands upon my head,
Smooth my whitened hair,
I've been growing old the while
You've been growing fair.
I have toiled and prayed for you—
Ask not why or how—
As I've loved and petted you,
Love and pet me now.

Take my withered hands in yours,
Children of my heart,
Mother's growing old, your love
Makes of life sweet part.
Touch with love my faded cheek,
Kiss my anxious brow.
As I've loved and petted you,
Love and pet me now.

Take my withered hands in yours,
Hold them close and strong.
Cherish me with a fond caress,
'Twill not be for long.
Youth immortal soon will crown
With its wreath my brow.
As I've loved and petted you,
Love and pet me now.

Take my withered hands in yours,
This your heart will prove;
If you owe me anything,
Pay the debt in love.
Press me in your strong, young arms,
Breathe a loving vow,
That as I loved and petted you,
You'll love and pet me now.

An Army Wife.

BY CAPTAIN CHARLES KING.

(Copyrighted, 1896, by F. Tennyson Neely.)

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—Fannie McLane, a young widow, is invited to visit the Graftons at Port Sedgwick. Her sister tries to dissuade her, as Randolph Merriam (whose she had jilted for old McLane) and his bride are stationed there.

Chapter II.—Fannie McLane's wedding causes family feeling. A few months later she, while traveling with her husband, meets Merriam on his wedding trip.

Chapter III.—Some time previous to this Merriam had gone on a government survey, fallen ill, and had been nursed by Mrs. Tremaine and daughter Florence. A hasty note from Mrs. McLane's stepson takes him to the plains.

Chapter IV.—Young McLane dictates to Merriam a dying message, which is sent to Parry (a young Chicago lawyer and brother-in-law of Mrs. McLane). Reply causes Merriam to swoon. He is taken to the Tremaine's; calls for Florence.

Chapter V.—Engagement of Florence Tremaine to Merriam is announced; wedding shortly follows.

Chapter VI.—Mr. McLane is mysteriously shot in San Francisco. Merriam is greatly excited when he reads account in papers. While still in mourning Mrs. McLane prepares to visit Port Sedgwick.

Chapter VII.—Mrs. McLane arrives at the fort. Merriam is startled at the news, and he and his wife absent themselves from the formal hop that evening.

Chapter VIII.—Mr. and Mrs. Merriam pay their respects to the widow on an evening when she would be sure to have many other callers. When the call is returned Merriam is away, and his wife pleads illness as excuse for not seeing her. Mrs. McLane receives telegram: "Arrested, Chicago. Your uncle stricken—paralysis. You will be summoned. Secure papers otherwise lose everything. C. M." She faints and is revived with difficulty.

Chapter IX.—Mrs. McLane desires to see Merriam. Grafton persuades him to go, but the widow postpones the meeting till next noon.

Chapter X.—Florence learns Merriam has been to see Mrs. McLane, and in a storm of passion will not allow him to explain. Then comes a brief summons to him to relieve the guard.

CHAPTER X.—CONTINUED.

One o'clock came, and the call had gone from sentry to sentry, thanks to the breathless stillness of the air, and the moon was climbing high, and Bux was still up and swearing. A "wire" came out from the Junction that the "special" would not be there for two hours, so the Riflers had stacked arms, unslinged packs, and were snoozing or skylarking as suited their humor. The colonel had given permission for a dance at Miguel's. The band was playing, and there was jollity in the wind. Bux said he wouldn't have the cavalry mixed up in any such tomfoolery, however, and the patrol was saddled and ready to start. Grafton, coming back from his stable, where he had gone to personally see to the selection of the mounts required, stopped and drew Merriam to one side.

"I'm sorry for the needless trouble you took this evening, Merriam. I had hoped that Mrs. McLane would see you and have done with it. Another dispatch came for her three hours ago, and it seems to have roused her to action. She was up and dressed in time to see the regiment off, and now, I presume, she's flirting with Whittaker. There are lights in the parlor. At all events the orderly hasn't found him, and Bux may send you after the stragglers in town."

"Then I reckon I'll start and make the rounds and get out of the way," said Randy. "By the way, captain, I hope your private stable is well secured. We have only one sentry on that whole front now, and that matched team of yours is a powerful temptation to Bravo horse fanciers. I mean to make two or three trips around the row to-night."

"Well, then I can save you several hundred yards, Merriam," said Grafton, fumbling in his pocket. "Take the short cut through my yard. There are no private horses between me and the east end of the line, you know. Here's the key to the rear gate."

Merriam took it and thanked him heartily.

"I'll go to the corral first," said he, "and then come over your way. Good night."

The lights were still burning dimly in the parlor as Grafton reached his quarters, but the slender form of a woman stood between him and the door. It was Mrs. McLane, and she began at once.

"I have been waiting anxiously for you, captain. Dear Harriet has gone to her room tired out, and I thought Mr. Whittaker would never go—I fairly had to send him. Mr. Merriam is officer of the guard. Could I see him—could you take me to him for just a minute? If I can talk with him three minutes it will be ample, and I cannot rest now until I do."

Grafton was on the point of bidding her remember that she had refused a chance of talking with him earlier that night, but refrained. He looked back across the shallow, moonlit surface of the parade to where the oil lamps were burning bleakly in the guardroom. "He is not there," said he. "He has gone down to the corral. But"—a happy thought striking him—"in less than ten minutes he will be coming through here on his rounds. I gave him the key of our rear gate. It's warm and pleasant out here. You might hail and halt him as he enters."

Meantime there had been a sore, sore-hearted young wife further up the row. As wrath and passion sobbed themselves away and the devil of jealousy wore itself out, and the thought of Randy's patience and gentleness and of all that Mrs. Hayne had said of his unflagging tenderness and love, poor Florence began to wonder if she had not angered him beyond repair. His last act had been one of fond, thoughtful care. He had spread the shawl over her and lingered over it as though he loved to touch her, mad, miserable, ugly, hateful as she had been, and she had spitefully thrown it off. She picked it up now and strove to arrange it as he had done, but could not. She arose and bathed her face and eyes, and gazed out over the now deserted parade. She had not even stirred when the Riflers marched away. She paced the floor again and felt that she was weak, and became conscious that she was most unromantically hungry, and then—Oh, heavens! how could she!—how could she have forgotten? Here was Randy on guard, up all night and never before since they came back from their wedding tour had she failed when he was officer of the guard to have a delightful little chafing dish supper all ready for him at 12 o'clock, and he used to come over from his duties for half an hour and eat with such an appetite and praise her Welsh rarebit, or her oysters, and then take her in his arms with such love and delight in his fond eyes, and here—and here it was one o'clock and she'd utterly forgotten it. Oh, poor Randy must be starving!

In ten minutes Mrs. Merriam had huddled up her disheveled hair, donned some more becoming gown than the tumbled wrapper, and had hustled downstairs and lighted the parlor lamp to signal Randy to come home and be fed and forgiven, and then she ransacked the cupboard and started her fire, and then peeped over toward the distant guardroom and saw no sign of his coming. She trotted through the kitchen and banged lustily at Top King's door and made him rise and go summon his master, but the menial answered not. He, too, had slipped away to the Junction—not so much to see the Riflers off as to have a shy at fan-tan, and Florence was alone. Never mind. She had been born and reared in garrison. No one could teach her the ins and outs of post life. Why shouldn't she run across the wide, dimly-lighted flat and surprise her darling at his desk, and bid him come home with her and let her twine herself about him, and have a happier cry as she told him how weak and wicked and cruel and hateful she had been, and beg to be taken back into his love and trust. Yes, yes, well she knew that he was too noble, too grand to treat her sternly, coldly, because of her tempestuous outbreak. It was all because she loved him so—loved him so that it was torture to think any other woman could claim or hold or even attract him. With brightening eyes, with bounding heart, she threw over her head and shoulders a light wrap and stepped out on the piazza. Somebody was coming across the parade—from the guardhouse—even now. He was still too far away to be recognized, but as he halted one minute and turned as though to listen to the sentries just beginning to call half-past one, the moonlight glistened on the steel scabbard, and she knew it must be Randy. Then he was coming to her after all, and she need not have to seek him and be the first to "make up," as she used to say in girlish days. The gall went round with echoing ring, and then on came her loving husband again. How she loved that martial stride of his! How erect and strong and soldierly he seemed! How—why—he wasn't coming—straight to her. He had reached the flagstaff. There lay the beaten pathway right before his eyes and hers. He must see the bright lights of his home hiding him come and find love and welcome. But he had turned away—was walking, not toward the west end, but straight for the middle of the row, straight to where the Graftons lived—where—that woman lived.

But that meant nothing. Oh, no! Florence well knew that meant nothing. Had he not said only a little while before that never would he see or speak with her without coming first to his wife, his Florence, and letting her know? Yet, why should he go thither, at this hour of the night? That was not the way to the sentry posts. Unconsciously she approached the edge of the piazza—she saw him reach the roadway—saw him cross it—saw him—merciful God! could she believe her eyes?—saw him enter what must be the Graftons' gate and then become lost in the shadows of the row. Hardly knowing what she did, Florence sped madly down the steps, out through the gate and, almost running, down eastward along the walk. Nearing the Graftons', she pressed her hand to her heart to still its mad pounding, and as she came opposite the parlor window she noted that the lamps were burning dimly, late as it was. Could he have entered? Breathless, dazed, she clung to the picket fence for support, not knowing what to do next, and then the blood seemed to turn to ice in her veins, for somewhere, close at hand, just beyond those sheltering vines she heard voices, his voice and hers, low-toned, earnest, and passionate—for she heard her murmur: "Oh, Randy, Randy!" and, stepping quickly forward, saw her just around the corner of the trelis, apparently clinging to his arm, the two dim figures seemingly linked together, blending in one vague, indistinguishable, yet damning shape, and then all grew dark to her, as though a pall had been dropped from the starry heavens, hiding from sight the sin and woe of a reeling world.

CHAPTER XI.

"Mrs. McLane," Merriam was saying at the moment, interrupting the pleading, weeping woman who was clinging to his arm, "it is useless to talk of it. Had you let me know why you wished to see me, all the pain of this meeting could have been avoided. Every paper I had was given to Mr. Parry, your lawyer, months ago. I know less about the matter, probably, than you do; and now, forgive me, but I must go at once."

Almost forcibly he drew her clasping hands from his arm, and turning sharply and without another word to the cowering woman, hastened on through the narrow pathway that led between Grafton's cottage and that to the eastward, and presently emerged again into the moonlight at the back of the house, going straight to the captain's stable. For a moment his late companion stood there at the trelis, staring after him in mingled misery and incredulity. She had planned it well. She had marked his coming just as Grafton had said, had hurried down to the shady aisle between the quarters and halted him there—astonished at her daring. He would have walked a dozen miles that night rather than see her at all, but to meet her this way, to feel that he was trapped, made Merriam's blood boil with wrath. His voice, though, was stern and cold as he bade her say why she wished to see him. But her aim was to detain, to soften, to charm and then to plead, and she had a dreadful, dreadful story to tell and none to tell to him. Even then she was balked, for Merriam bluntly bade her omit the story, as he knew all he needed to know, and come to the point at once. What could she want of him? Advice—sympathy, she cried; and for advice he referred her to her lawyer—for sympathy she must not come to him. She must have some purpose in calling on him—what was it? And then it proved to be the packet with certain papers, given him by the young miner in the Mesquero. "It was turned over to your lawyer long ago," said Randy; and then she burst into tears and said she was undone, and wailed: "Oh, Randy, Randy! what can I—what am I to do?" And he suggested gravely, courteously, but positively, that she should at once go indoors, while he went on his way.

His heart was bitter against her as he strode out beyond the fence line, and, after carefully inspecting the doors of Grafton's stable, he closed and locked the gate. He wished now more than ever to hurry on westward and enter his own little home and surprise Florence. With grateful eyes he had noted the parlor lights and interpreted them as indicating that she must be well over the unreasonable stage of this her first, and he prayed God, her last, jealous trouble. He turned toward his own gate, intending only to glance at the other stables on the way and give the sentry additional orders; but when he got so far toward the western end of the row as to enable him to distinguish any object as big as a man he found to his vexation that there was no sentry there at all, and that he must retrace his steps and look for him toward the other end. It was a backward tramp of over 300 yards, and he was irritated enough to feel like scoring the sentry when finally he came upon him.

"You shouldn't be here, sir," he began, after the customary challenge and reply. "Where you are most needed is along toward the other end, where there are private horses in soldier's stables."

"I know, sir," said the soldier, promptly, "but there's something amiss out there on the road toward town. I heard a scuffle and cries for help, and then a running down into the creek bottom. The corporal's gone out to see. I'm afraid there's been blood spilt, sir."

And even as they stood and listened, the still night air was split by the loud report of a carbine, echoed back from the opposite wall of the shallow, narrow canyon. It was followed almost instantly by a cry for aid.

"Come right along," shouted Merriam to the sentry, and he sprang away in the direction of the alarm. "Never mind your post!"

A run of nearly 400 yards, crossing diagonally the Junction road as they ran, brought the lieutenant to the edge of the chasm, at a point where one could see some distance down the stream, the sentry panting several rods behind. The moonlight was faint, but still sufficient to enable him to make out the form of a man apparently crawling on hands and knees up the bank, while another lay motionless close to the water's edge. Over this latter Corporal Mahoney was bending, imploring in grief-stricken tones. Randy went bounding down the abrupt slope, sure-footed as a goat.

"What's the matter, corporal? What is it?"

"Brady, sir—stabbed to death, I'm afraid. There was three of 'em on him, and more at poor Corcoran yonder—Mexicans all of 'em, and they lit out straight for that monte shack across the mesa. Their horses are there, I reckon. Look up, Brady, man, for God's sake! Here's the lieutenant come to help."

Merriam knelt, threw open the blue blouse and placed his hand over the heart, waited a moment and shook his head. His hand was dripping with blood as he drew it out. "All over with poor Brady, I fear," said he. "Run quick, No. 2 followed me out. Tell him to hurry for the surgeon and send the litter from the hospital. Who fired?"

"I did, sir. I hoped to bring down one of the gang, but they were too far off," answered the corporal, as he was pulling himself up the bank.

Turning away from the stricken soldier and dabbled for a moment his hand in the stream, Randy called to Corcoran, the other victim, who was groaning and cursing alternately, and who presently burst into maudlin tears, demanding to be given a chance to stand up against the d—d greasers again, that he might annihilate the entire party. It was evident that a subtler enemy had downed him even before the Mexican took hold. He was only slightly injured physically, but his money was gone. All Randy could extract from him was that there had been a game and he wouldn't pay up because the greasers were cheating, and they chased him and Brady, and overtook them and used their knives.

Buxton was still up and full of his project of sending the patrol of absentees and the band just as soon as the Riflers' train should have started. He heard the call for the surgeon, and promptly turned out in person. The sleepy horses of the patrol were standing meekly and wonderingly at the guardhouse when the distant shot was fired, and, borrowing one, the sergeant galloped out. When Bux appeared he borrowed another, and one for the surgeon. Then, after hearing Merriam's brief recital, he ordered him to mount forthwith, take the entire patrol and gallop in chase of the greasers.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Fables of Great Men.

The weakness of a great man is often that feature which contains the most interest for the student of human nature. It may be of interest to know that Napoleon set aside $4,000 a year for dress. Unfortunately, he had a weakness for white breeches, and often, while wholly absorbed in state affairs, he would spill ink or coffee on those delicate trousers, which he would hasten to change upon discovering the spots. This circumstance cost the blameless but timid Comte de Remusat his place as master of the robes. The emperor spoiled his clothes so frequently that the imperial tailor was constantly receiving fresh orders, and $4,000 became insufficient to meet the bills. The master of robes was foolishly afraid to mention the subject to Napoleon, and continued to give unsatisfactory replies to the insistent tailor who became pressing in his demands. At length, becoming exasperated, the tailor took the bold step of complaining to Napoleon, who learned with astonishment and anger that he owed his tailor $6,000; he paid the bill and at the same time dismissed the frightened Comte de Remusat. "I hope," said the emperor, smiling and frowning at the same time at his newly appointed master of robes, "that you will not expose me to the disgrace of being dunned for the breeches I am wearing."—Waverly Magazine.

Only One Thing Lacking.

A number of traveling men were talking about the singular experiences they have at various small hotels throughout the northwest. Somebody referred to Dennis Foley, whose hotel at Menno, in Hutchinson county, S. D., is very popular with the boys because of its genial landlord. One of the tourists remarked:

"You would know, of course, that Dennis is a thorough Irishman, although he hasn't a very broad brogue. Hutchinson county is settled almost exclusively by Russians, and the town of Menno is named after the great religious reformer who founded the Mennonite church to which so many of the Russians belong. One day I was talking to Dennis about his experiences in the town and county, and I said to him:

"Why is it, Dennis, that you haven't tried for some office here where you have lived so many years, and where you have such influence?"

"I did try for an office once," he replied. "I ran for sheriff and lacked only one thing of winning."

"What was that?" I asked.

"All that I lacked of being sheriff was the Russian vote."—Sioux City Journal.

She Won.

"Mary," said Mr. Thomas, when a silence fraught with unpleasant meaning had followed his first altercation with his young wife. "Yes?" said Mary, interrogatively. "When a man and his wife have had a—difference," said Mr. Thomas, with a judicial air, "and each considers the other at fault, which of the two do you think should make the first advance toward reconciliation?" "The wiser of the two," said Mrs. Thomas, promptly; "and so, my dear, I'll say at once that I'm very sorry." It occurred to Mr. Thomas that it might have been as well for him to make the first advance, after all, but he thoughtfully refrained from saying so.—Youth's Companion.

Wise Father.

When Mr. Rudyard Kipling was a lad he went on a sea voyage with his father, Mr. Lockwood Kipling. Soon after the vessel got under way, Mr. Kipling went below, leaving the boy on deck. Presently there was a great commotion overhead, and one of the ship's officers rushed down and banged at Mr. Kipling's door. "Mr. Kipling," he cried, "your boy has crawled out on the yard-arm, and if he lets go he'll drown!" "Yes," said Mr. Kipling, glad to know that nothing serious was the matter, "but he won't let go."—Academy.

FUNNY FOLKS

Revenge Is Sweet.
"Ah!" sighed the faded beauty, gazing cynically in the glass, "would I were a soldier brave!"
"Why?" queried her maid, in some alarm. "Whatever put such an idea into your head?"
"Because then, instead of time marking me, I could mark time."—N. Y. Journal.

A Modern Difficulty.
"Tis useless to labor with patience and tact. For surprises are certain to burst. What happens original thoughts is the fact that the old thinkers thought of them first."
—Washington Star.

EXPLAINED AT LAST.

Everyone wondered why Prof. Dauber wore such a long pointed beard, but could not imagine how he obtained such satisfactory results.—N. Y. Ledger.

A Correction.
"Birds now build nests in cannons' mouths."
Peace-lauding poets sing;
The guns are still, but, booby bards,
Birds do not nest till spring.
—Chicago Record.

A Trait.
"Human nature is inherently pessimistic," remarked the man who assumes great wisdom.
"There isn't any proof of that assertion."
"Yes, there is. Nobody ever stops to talk about the weather except when it's disagreeable."—Washington Star.

A Deduction.
Brown—Smith's wife is an awful virago. Why doesn't she keep her tongue between her teeth occasionally?
Towne—I suppose she's afraid of being arrested for carrying concealed weapons.—N. Y. Journal.

A Little and Therewith Content.
I do not care for vast estates
Nor millions at command;
One million is enough for me,
And that in cash on hand.
—N. Y. Truth.

GIVING HERSELF AWAY.

"How old are you then, miss?"
"Twenty-three."
"And your younger sister?"
"She's 26."—Fliegende Blaetter.

At the Theater.
Her hat was large—but, glorious truth, Revenge was perched upon the chair. In front, where sat a college youth With a football head of hair.
—Chicago Daily News.

So Sarcasitic.
Willie—I once knew a girl who nearly died from ice cream poisoning.
Nellie—The very idea! I would never have dreamed of such a thing happening to a girl of your acquaintance.—Indianapolis Journal.

Two Great Periods.
He—There are two periods in a man's life when he never understands a woman.
"Indeed, and when are they?"
"Before he is married and afterwards."—Tit-Bits.

Avowed It.
Prospect—They say if it hadn't been for his poor wife Tankton would have filled a drunkard's grave.
Parke—Yes, she had him cremated.—Brooklyn Life.

Contented.
Almost any girl will tell you, If the question's put to her, That the man who is spooniest Is the least inclined to stir.
—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Go.
"Bargreaves says he never goes in society."
"No. He tried, but he didn't go."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

How It Began.
Mrs. Dixon—Your husband paid me such a pretty compliment yesterday.
Mrs. Hixon—Indeed! What did he say?
Mrs. Dixon—Why, he said that I looked younger and handsomer than ever.
Mrs. Hixon—Oh, I'm not much surprised at his saying that. The doctor told him the other day that he was threatened with softening of the brain.
—Chicago Daily News.

A Victim of Circumstances.
The small boy was looking very morose.
"What's the matter?" inquired his companion.
"Well, to tell the plain truth, I guess I'm jealous. It's just my luck. I'm not old enough to go to war nor young enough to be the baby, and so far as any chance of being the pride and pet of the household is concerned, I'm clear out of it."—Washington Star.

Not the Thing Now.
"I want your daughter," he wrote to the old gentleman.
"Come and get her," was the old gentleman's reply.
"Oh, dear, no," answered the suitor. "That's not at all the correct thing now. Let her come and get me."
Then they knew that he was really a man with a title and not an imposter.
—Chicago Post.

Two Happy Experiences.
"I don't know of anything that caused me so much real happiness as my soldier experience," said the optimistic young man.
"But I thought—"
"Oh, we had our troubles. But whenever I think of how glad I was to go and how glad I was to get home again, I can't help being a little bit appreciative."—Washington Star.

Two Jews.
When all our efforts pass for naught, When things do not go as they ought, Or we've not found that which we sought, We marvel at the dull world's imbecility! But when we have achieved success, And all our friends their praise express, We certainly cannot do less Than pride ourselves upon our own ability.
—Puck.

UNFORTUNATE ALL AROUND.

Irate Old Gentleman—Here, I say, your beast of a dog has bitten a piece out of my leg!
Dog's Owner—O, bother! And I wanted to bring him up a vegetarian!
—Punch.

The Dream of Life.
The world's a stage, and all The people are but actors, so they say; And each is prone to think the thing would fall Flat if he were to draw out of the play.
—Chicago Daily News.

It Didn't Surprise the Janitor.
Janitor—You'll have to stop practicing on that cornet—we can't stand it.
Cornetist—I'm sorry that music has no charms for you. You know, Orpheus moved inanimate objects by his music.
Janitor—Is that his cornet you've got?—Up to Date.

Too Particular.
"No, sir; it's too shady. I can't afford to touch the thing. I must remind you that I have a reputation, and I value it."
"You were always particular about little things."—N. Y. Truth.

Enigma.
"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"
"I cannot tell you, kind sir," she cried. "For you must know that this pretty maid was just beginning to learn to ride."
—Town Topics.

THE FACTS IN THE CASE.

"Did he leave his wife much?"
"Every night."—Boston Herald.

The Modern Hero.
"In the world's broad field of battle, In the bivouac of life,"
Don't you spit the word, for that'll furnish passtime for your wife.
—L. A. W. Bulletin.

The Place for Him.
Harriet—What did the officer do when he caught you searching?
Harry—Put me in the cooler.—N. Y. Evening Journal.

A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS.

From the Mountaineer, Waltham, N. Dak.
The remorse of a guilty stomach is what a large majority of the people are suffering with to-day. Dyspepsia is a characteristic American disease and it is frequently stated that "we are a nation of dyspeptics."
Improper food, hurried eating, mental worry, exhaustion, and other causes produce a lack of vitality in the system, by causing the blood to lose its life-sustaining elements. The blood is the vital element in our lives and should be carefully nurtured. Restore the blood to its proper condition, dyspepsia will vanish and good health follow.
For example, in the county of Pembina, North Dakota, a few miles from Waltham, resides Mr. Ernest Snider, a man of sterling integrity, whose veracity cannot be doubted. He says:

The Doctors Disagreed.

"I became seriously ill three years ago. The doctor gave me medicine for indigestion, but I continued to become worse. I had several physicians at intervals who gave me some relief, but nothing permanent.
"I read in the newspapers articles regarding the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and finally concluded to try the pills. I purchased six boxes. This was five months ago. The first box gave me much relief. I continued taking the pills, and after using four boxes was cured."
These pills are recognized everywhere as a specific for diseases of the blood and nerves. For paralysis, locomotor ataxia, and other diseases long supposed incurable, they have proved their efficacy in thousands of cases.

CONGENIAL OCCUPATION.

Light and Profitable Employment for a Poor Old Man Who Had Nothing But Money.

The old stock broker limped wearily down the familiar country road on which in boyhood days he had often driven the cows homeward to their barn at milking time, and ever and anon some familiar feature of the landscape caught his eye. Years ago his father had died and left the farm to his brother and himself. Soaring tired of the dull toil of a farmer's life, he resolved to go to the city and seek his fortune.

Here his honest face secured him a position with a Wall Street firm, the members of the firm assuming that an honest, ingenuous countenance was such a rarity in their line of business that it might attract attention and add to their clientele. Soon branching out for himself, he in time became one of the largest operators on the street. But, caught in a crash, he was penniless, and was now forced to seek a home with his brother's sons, who had prospered with the farm.

As he reached the familiar gate the young husbandmen saw him, and with a yell they rushed to meet their uncle.
"Come right in! You shall not want for anything!" cried Jabe.
"The room you occupied when a boy is ready for you!" shouted Bijah.
"Not a lick of work shall you do!" chimed in another of his nephews.
"Hush, boys!" said the old stock broker. "I'm still able to work, and shall do my share. Never shall it be said that I ate of anyone's bread and ended my days in slothfulness."
"Well," answered one of the nephews, "can you think of any light work about the place you could do? Something congenial, you know, that won't seem too strange and hard for you?"
"Yes," replied the uncle, after a pause. "I have it. I shall water the stock!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

In Confidence.
First Doctor—Yes, I've been his family physician for years.
Second Doctor—And he appreciates all you have done for him?
"More than that. He appreciates all he thinks I've done for him."—Brooklyn Life.

Not Sanctified.
Clergyman—You want to be separated from your husband? Don't you know that marriages are made in heaven?
She—I know that, sir; but ours was not. I got my husband through an advertisement in the papers.—Illustrated American.

Faller must never be too particular 'bout his cooking, 'cause if he is, he'll get his fat takin' good medicine for dyspepsia on the quiet an' say nothin'.—Denver Times-Sun.

Hicks—"You want to know if Innerby loves that girl? Why, he actually loves her faults." Wicks—"Lucky girl! She has so many."—Boston Transcript.

A perfectly trained husband is one who gives the impression that the hardest work of his life was in coaxing his wife to marry him.—Atchison Globe.

A WAY TO SETTLE IT.

They Were Rivals and There Was a Chance for Trouble But Peace Prevailed.

"Now, then, sir, I think we have a little business with each other. Suppose we settle it right here."
"I know what you mean. Say, look here, You and I are counting the same girl, and naturally we don't like each other. That's the trouble, isn't it?"
"That's it, and we don't need to waste many words over it, either."
"We won't. I would like to occupy your time just about two minutes, however, and if we can't settle this thing without fighting I'm your man, from a Cuban machete to a Philippine parang or any other weapon belonging either to normal or to expanded America. Suppose you kill me. You couldn't marry the girl. Even if you escaped hanging it wouldn't do you any good. She would never look at you again. Suppose I kill you. I couldn't marry her, either. But you wouldn't get much satisfaction out of that. You wouldn't be in a position to do any crowing. Suppose we kill each other. If the girl cares for either of us it would break her heart. So what's the good of fighting? Why not arbitrate the case?"
"Arbitrate it?"
"Yes. It's a toss-up, anyway. One of us stands as good a show as the other, and it wouldn't cause things up as a fight with deadly weapons would. We can state our case and leave the decision to the arbitrator."

"But, great Scott! Whom could we get to do the arbitrating?"
"Suppose we leave it to the girl herself?"
"All right. I hadn't thought of that."—Chicago Tribune.

Only Thirty and Gray

How is this?
Perhaps sleepless nights caused it, or grief, or sickness, or perhaps it was care. No matter what the cause, you cannot wish to look old at thirty.
Gray hair is starved hair. The hair bulbs have been deprived of proper food or proper nerve force.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

increases the circulation in the scalp, gives more power to the nerves, supplies missing elements to the hair bulbs.

Used according to directions, gray hair begins to show color in a few days. Soon it has all the softness and richness of youth and the color of early life returns.

Would you like our book on the Hair? We will gladly send it to you.

Write us!

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the Vigor, write the doctor about it. He may be able to suggest something of value to you. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Shall We Keep the Philippines?
Public opinion is divided as to the wisdom of keeping the Philippines. Wise statesmen are found on both sides of the question. Public opinion, however, is all one way in regard to the wisdom of everybody keeping their health. For this purpose Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is widely used. This medicine is both preventive and cure for malarial fevers, stomach disorders, torpid liver and impure blood. It is agreeable to weak stomachs and soothing to the nerves.

REGAINED HEALTH.

Gratifying Letters to Mrs. Pinkham From Happy Women.

"I Owe You My Life."

Mrs. E. WOOLHISER, Mills, Neb., writes:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I owe my life to your Vegetable Compound. The doctors said I had consumption and nothing could be done for me. My menstruation had stopped and they said my blood was turning to water. I had several doctors. They all said I could not live. I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me right away; menses returned and I have gained in weight. I have better health than I have had for years. It is wonderful what your Compound has done for me."

"I Feel Like a New Person."

Mrs. GEO. LEACH, 1609 Belle St., Alton, Ill., writes:
"Before I began to take your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer from womb trouble. Menses would appear two and three times in a month, causing me to be so weak I could not stand. I could neither sleep nor eat, and looked so badly my friends hardly knew me.
"I took doctor's medicine but did not derive much benefit from it. My druggist gave me one of your little books, and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel like a new person. I would not give your Compound for all the doctors' medicine in the world. I can not praise it enough."

The Awkwardness of Being a Prince.

The Prince of Wales is placed by fate in the most difficult position of any English subject. Labeled incessantly, continuously and malignantly, silence is imposed on him by reasons of state. If he patronizes the drama, for the neglect of which the queen is persistently blamed, the prince is depicted as a trifler, who finds in the society of mummies relief from the tedium of a wasted life. If he encourages our national sports, he is a profligate and is compared with royal predecessors, whose conduct would certainly not commend itself today even to the staunchest supporters of monarchy. If he does not lavish money he does not possess, he is said to be stingy. If he makes an outlay on a church at Sandringham or a ball at Marlborough House, he is a spendthrift. Unworthy friendships are attributed to him with men upon whom he has never set eyes or with whom he may perhaps have exchanged a casual word. If he plays a game of cards, he is a gambler.

Fierce as is the light that beats upon a throne, the cruel and searching illumination of the prince's life inflicts on him the disabilities and responsibilities, while denying him either the power of the throne or the privileges of a private station.—Harper's Magazine.

The English Broom.

One of the botanical oddities of Massachusetts is the existence of the English broom, which grows in only two places—in Sterling, this county, and in Salem. It is not a native plant, and how it got across the water is a mystery. Perhaps some homesick colonist caused it to be sent to him, that the hills about his new home might have the familiar appearance of the old country. It is a beautiful golden yellow in color and grows in a compact, spirallike plant, with blossoms close together. So thick are the stalks that the pastures are like sheets of gold, and at first sight seem to be buttercups in masses. Arba Pierce brought some of it into the city and proposes to make a display of it at the exhibition of the horticultural society.

Every one has heard of the broom. English and Scotch literature is full of it. It was the flower of the royal house of Plantagenet. In fact, the name Plantagenet is the French for broom plant a genet. Their ancestor, the Count d'Anjou, wore a string of broom as a badge, therefore their name. The name broom is given it because of its usefulness for the purpose.—Worcester (Mass.) Gazette.

A Bismarck Duel.

A duel in which Bismarck was once engaged had a very amusing origin. It occurred when he was chief secretary of the Prussian legation at Frankfurt. He went much into society, and one Christmas attended a big ball. During the height of the festivities Bismarck's attention was directed to an exceedingly pompous individual who strutted about the room. This was a M. de Clancy, a noted French duelist. Later on this important individual took part in a dance, but having omitted to leave his hat at the proper place had perforce to hold it out almost at arm's length while he danced. The spectacle tickled Bismarck immensely, and as the Frenchman came sailing majestically along Bismarck stepped forward and dropped a coin into the hat. A duel was one of the next day's events. Though it was with pistols Bismarck escaped unhurt, while his adversary was wounded.

Freedom From a Terrible Slavery.

At last, I am thankful to say, the opera is dead. No longer shall my soul be corroded by the thought that I ought to be in my stall and am not. No longer when I am in my stall shall I writhe in anger to think of the stupidity of wasting my time so.—London Saturday Review.

"Sorry," interrupted the editor, "but I couldn't think of taking a child away from its parent."—Harlem Life.

GREENBACKS or Government Money.

At close of our Civil War in 1865, there appeared in the London Times the following:

"If that mischievous financial policy which had its origin in the North American Republic during the late Civil War in that country, should become indurated down to a fixture, then that government will furnish its money without cost. It will have all the money that is necessary to carry on its trade and commerce. It will become prosperous beyond precedent in the history of civilized nations of the world. The brain and wealth of all countries will go to North America. THAT GOVERNMENT MUST BE DESTROYED OR IT WILL DESTROY EVERY MONARCHY ON THIS GLOBE."

The famous Hazzard circular, to capitalists in New York, and the Buell Bank circular to United States Bankers, both emanating from London, and the fabulous corruption fund raised in England and Germany, estimated at $1,500,000, were the agents that secured the closing of our mints against silver.

The "walk into my parlor" policy of England, during and since the Spanish War, is the latest evidence of English Diplomacy in shaping the destiny of the United States Government.

Notwithstanding the famine price of wheat, the Spanish War, and fabulous expenditures of money by our government during the past year, gold has increased in value eleven per cent. and all other values decreased in the same proportion.

For a thorough understanding of the money question, or silver issue, the Cincinnati Enquirer has uniformly given evidence of its ability to teach, explain and produce all facts and truth. It is a paper that ought and can be read by all classes with pleasure and profit.
